QUAKE DISASTER AFTERMATH.

MARTIAL LAW: ARMED PICKETS OUT.

FEARS FOR SAFETY OF POPULAR CANTON RESIDENTS.

MORE SHOCKS IN NIGHT.

HASTINGS was severely rocked by another earthquake at ten o'clock last night, but no further extensive damage is reported and it is not believed that further casualties have occurred. Rescue workers are not relaxing their efforts and the situation appears to be well in control, though martial law is being enforced, and armed pickets are out to prevent looting.

There is reason to think that two well-known residents of Canton, Mr. and Mrs. Crowe, may have been involved in the disaster at Napier. The absence of information has given rise to fears for their safety.

NAVY STOPS NAPIER BLAZE.

Some anxiety is felt in Shanghai and at the local office of Messrs. Jardine Matheson and Company for the safety of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crowe, who, it is feared, may have been involved in the New Zealand earthquake disaster.

Mr. Crowe is a member of the staff of the Canton office of Messrs. Jardine Matheson and Company, and, accompanied by his wife, he left some little time ago on a tour of inspection in New Zealand.

In Napier Quake.

The last news received from Mr. Crowe came from Napier and it is believed that he must have been in Napier at the time of the disaster.

The Telegraph has received inquiries for news of Mr. Crowe, but for the present, the names of the victims are not available. It is hoped that a list will be prepared in the next few days. No message has been received from Mr. Crowe since the catastrophe but this may, of course, be due to the breakdown of the telegraph system.

Hastings Reshaken.

The town of Hastings, twenty miles from Napier, was badly shaken at ten o'clock last night when violent earth tremors recommenced.

Strict martial law is being enforced and armed pickets are patrolling the streets to prevent looting.

A train conveying the serious cases of people injured in the quake is expected to leave for the south tomorrow morning, and a refugee train will depart in the afternoon. It is hoped to run the first train to Napier on the 7th instant.

Veronica Stranded.

H.M.S. Veronica, the little sloop, whose commander and crew played a splendid part in the rescue work after the Napier disaster and after their vessel had escaped destruction by a miracle, is at present stranded in six feet of water at high tide. The vessel draws twelve feet of water, and her position illustrates the upheaval under the sea.

The reports of serious loss of life and serious damage to property in the business portions of Napier and Hastings are confirmed in a further telegram sent by the Governor-General, Lord Bledisloe, to the Dominion Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas to-day.

Residential Damage.

The telegram states, however, that in the residential areas, the damage was not excessive.

Although the Red Cross has estimated the death-roll at "considerably over a thousand," Lord Bledisloe states that the death-roll at present ascertained is approximately 140, but a complete list will not be available for a day or two, as the occupants of some of the larger buildings which collapsed, still lie beneath the debris.

Fires Quenched.

Rescue work is proceeding rapidly and the fires following the earthquake have been quenched under the efficient relief organization, in which the officers and men of His Majesty's Ships are taking a prominent part.

The injured and other sufferers are receiving every possible care and attention, and the situation is now under complete control.

Although a considerable number of women and children are leaving Napier it is considered possible that the measures now being taken in an endeavour to remove the danger to health from the damaged sanitation services, may obviate the necessity of a compulsory evacuation of the town.

Inhabitants' Fortitude.

The inhabitants have shown remarkable calmness and fortitude in their severe trial and there have been many acts of heroism.

People throughout the country are responding to the call for assistance with promptitude and generous unselishness which compel the greatest admiration. Lady Bledisloe and I will leave for the stricken area on Saturday.

The Duke and Duchess of York received a cable from Lord Bledisloe conveying the appreciation of those who suffered bereavement and injury in the earthquake and of all the Dominion for the sympathy expressed in a telegram from their Highnesses.

London Enquiries.

The New Zealand High Commissioner in London, Sir Thomas Wilford, this morning, conversed from his Chelsea home with the Prime Minister, Mr. Forbes, via Sydney, by telephone, when it was confirmed that the casualties are confined to Hawkes Bay County, Wairoa and Napier.

Mr. Forbes hoped that a list of the victims would be available tomorrow.

The Premier stated that it is still impossible to give any definite figure of the killed and injured in the earthquake, but in view of the anxiety which Sir Thomas Wilford explained was felt by New Zealanders in England, the Premier said an effort would be made to send a casualty list tomorrow.

British Sympathy.

Sir Thomas Wilford has been inundated with messages of sympathy from all over Great Britain, and he has also received many unsolicited donations for the purpose of relief.

Women Rescued.

Further quake shocks occurred this afternoon, and impeded rescue work, which has revealed numbers of crushed and mutilated bodies.

FAMOUS AIR ACE DEAD.

"DARE-DEVIL SAMSON" DIES SUDDENLY.

GERMAN TRIBUTE.

London, Feb. 5.
"Daredevil Samson" one of the most popular officers of the Royal Air Force died suddenly to-day. He was only forty-seven years of age, though he had obtained the rank of Air Commodore.

His provoking prowess up and down the German lines on the Western Front made him one of the most distinguished members of the R. A. F. and the Germans paid him the tribute of setting a price upon his head of £1,000.

He was often known as "Captain Kettle" of the R. A. F. owing to his short rakish beard.

Air Commodore Charles Rumney Samson, C.M.G., D.S.O., A.F.C., began service with the Crown in the Royal Navy, which he joined in 1898. He saw much active service and played a leading part as a Lieutenant in suppressing hostile Arab activities in the Persian Gulf.

He then turned to the air and took his pilot's licence in 1911, soon showing the ingenuity and daring which made him world-famous. He conducted the first experiments ever made with sea-planes and led the way in the development of night flying. He also conceived the idea—then entirely new—of launching a plane from a vessel at sea. He achieved the feat for the first time in the history of aviation in 1912.

Brought Down Zeppelin.

During the war he took part in the campaigns in Belgium, France, the Dardanelles, Egypt and the Red Sea and received rapid promotion. In 1918 he tried the launching of a machine from a lighter towed at high speed by a destroyer, with the object of getting height quickly. At the first attempt, the plane crashed and Samson nearly lost his life. He made a second attempt and proved the value of the plan and by this means he brought down a Zeppelin raider soon afterwards.

He conducted the long Empire flights in 1927 which showed the high efficiency of R.A.F. equipment. In addition to his British honours, he was the holder of the Croix de Guerre and was a Chevalier of the Legion of Honour.

FASTEST AIRMAIL CARRIER.

NEW FOKKER PLANE IN LONDON.

London, Feb. 5.

Considerable expert interest was lavished to-day upon a new tri-engined Dutch air-liner on its arrival at Croydon.

It is styled the Fokker F 12, and it develops 1,350 horse-power. It is the fastest air-liner in Europe at the present time, embodies a spacious cabin with accommodation for sixteen passengers and a large quantity of mail.

The plane will serve the Croydon-Amsterdam, and the Amsterdam-Batavia routes.—Reuter.

CANTON-KOWLOON RAILWAY.

SUGGESTED NEW CHINESE SUPERINTENDENT.

Nanking, Feb. 5.
Nanking official circles mention the likely appointment of Mr. Hsieh Pao-chiu, Secretary of the Ministry of Railways, as Chinese Superintendent of the Canton-Kowloon Railway.

The present Superintendent, Mr. Liu Cho-ko, may be appointed as Superintendent of the Canton-Hankow Railway (Kwangtung section).

Mr. Hsieh is on a visit to Canton at present in connection with the negotiations with British officials in Canton regarding the suggested revision of the Sino-British agreement governing the Canton-Kowloon Railway.

CAPTAIN CAMPBELL TRIUMPHS.

THE EAST TOXTETH BYE-ELECTION.

TORIES EASILY RETAIN THE SEAT.

POLLING VERY LOW.

London, Feb. 5.

The bye-election in the East Toxteth Division of Liverpool, caused by the elevation to the Peerage of Mr. Henry Mond on the death of his father, Lord Melchett, has resulted in the Conservatives retaining the seat by a largely-increased majority. The polling was as follows:

Mr. P. G. T. Buchan-Hepburn (Con.) 17,040.
Mr. Borden (Labour) 6,550.

Conservative majority 11,490.

At the last General Election, Mr. Henry Mond held the seat for the Conservatives by a majority of 7,774 over the Labour candidate in a three-cornered contest. The figures were:—Mr. Mond (Con.), 17,678; Mr. J. J. Cleary (Lab.), 9,904; Mr. A. O. Roberts (Lib.), 9,287.

There was obviously not a great deal of interest taken in the bye-election, as 14,279 fewer voters went to the poll than at the General Election. This is probably accounted for by the fact that East Toxteth is a "safe" Conservative seat. The polling shows that the Conservative vote shrunk by 638, whilst Labour was no fewer than 4,354 votes down.

Mr. Buchan-Hepburn, the new member, unsuccessfully contested Wolverhampton East at the General Election in a three-cornered fight in which the Liberal was returned. He is the second son of Sir Archibald Buchan-Hepburn, and was Attaché to H. M. Embassy at Constantinople from 1925 to 1927. In 1921, he was High Sheriff of Staffordshire.

Three More Contests.

A bye-election is necessitated in the Pontypridd Division of Glamorganshire owing to the resignation of the Labour member, Mr. T. I. Mardy Jones, who at the General Election in a three-cornered contest, had a majority of 6,000 over the Liberal and of 17,000 over the Conservative. He started work as a pit-boy at the age of 12 and subsequently became political agent of the Miners' Federation at Pontypridd.

Other bye-elections pending are at Fareham (Hampshire) and East Islington.—British Wireless.

WANG'S DETENTION DENIED.

NANKING SEEKS CORRECTION OF REPORTS.

Nanking, Feb. 5.
The Nanking Military Command is to circulate letters to all Shanghai and Nanking Chinese newspapers, demanding that a correction be inserted in connection with the reports of a new rising at Nanking and the alleged detention of the chief Kwangsi peace delegate, General Wang Shao-hung.

It is understood that General Wang Shao-hung again will confer with Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and Marshal Li Chai-kum before returning South, when he is likely to be assigned an important post in the new Kwangsi Provincial Government.

It is unofficially suggested that General Wang may be appointed Rehabilitation Commissioner of Kwangsi.

FOUR MILES A MINUTE IN "BLUE-BIRD."

SEGRAVE'S LAND SPEED RECORD BEATEN BY 14 M.P.H.

120 YARDS A SECOND!

CAPTAIN Malcolm Campbell made a new world's land speed record of 245.733 miles an hour at Daytona Beach yesterday, driving his new car the Napier-Campbell "Blue-bird." The difference between the new and the old records, 14.371 miles an hour, is faster than the time in which the average man can run a mile!

One-tenth of a second between his times for two runs made a difference of 1.6 miles! His average speed works out at over 360 feet per second! Yet Captain Campbell, hurtling through space at this colossal speed, kept his car in perfect control, and immediately afterwards attempted a new record for a "Baby" Austin.

FAMOUS DRIVER'S CAR DESCRIBED.

New York, Feb. 5.
Captain Malcolm Campbell, the British racing motorist, achieved his life's ambition on the beach at Daytona, Florida, to-day, driving his new "Bluebird" car at an average speed for bursts in two directions of 245.733 miles an hour!

Captain Campbell beat the world's record set up by the late Sir Henry Segrave by over 14 miles an hour. Segrave's speed being 231.362 m.p.h.

His time for the flying measured mile on the southward trip was 14.60 seconds, equivalent to a speed of 246.575 miles an hour. On the return journey, he completed the mile in 14.70 seconds, or 244.897 miles an hour.

The excellence of the feat is enhanced by the fractional difference between the two speeds. Although it works out at 1.678 miles an hour, the difference in time was only one-tenth of a second!

Campbell's Confidence.

Campbell's confidence in his car was illustrated at the end of his first run. He had the privilege of changing his tyres and of refuelling for half an hour, but Captain Campbell having completed the outward burst in what he knew to be record time, waived his privilege of tyre-changing and an interval, and simply swung his car round and raced off for the northward run.

He had the wonderful vehicle under splendid control from start to finish.

"Giants or Midgets."

When the new world's record was announced, Captain Campbell hardly gave the onlookers time to congratulate him on his brilliant feat, but jumped straight into a "Baby" Austin in an attempt to beat the record for cars of 45 cubic centimetres "in order to prove that British cars, giants or midgets, are the world's best."

He was, however, unsuccessful in his attempt with the Austin.—Reuter's American Service.

HEADMASTER ON FORCING PACE.

COLONY'S EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM AT FAULT.

GOVERNOR'S PROMISE.

Some very outspoken comments upon the weaknesses of the Colony's educational system were made by Mr. F. J. de Rome, Headmaster of Queen's College, at the annual prize-giving to-day.

In particular, Mr. de Rome criticised the forcing of the pace in Senior schools in order to get boys to take Matriculation in three years, declaring that the foundations are badly laid, and that it results in mental muddle. He agreed with the suggestion that Matriculation be replaced by School Leaving Certificate Examinations.

His Excellency the Governor, who distributed the prizes, admitted that the results of the recent University examinations were very disappointing, and said he was making investigations for changes in the system.

Headmaster's Report.

In the course of a lengthy annual report, the Headmaster remarked that punctuality and regularity of attendance exercise a great effect on discipline and tone, without which no good work can be done in any school. I find the average attendance for the year was only 86%: on an average 40-50 boys were absent every day, or again on an average, each boy in the school was absent for about 2½ weeks during the school year.

Parents go to no end of trouble to get their sons into the school and I could only wish that their sense of responsibility did not cease there. Many boys seem to suffer from a plethora of minor ailments and are absent on the slightest provocation; perhaps, owing to living conditions this cannot be avoided, but what can and should be avoided is the habit of parents in withdrawing their sons for weeks at a stretch to soothe the sufferings of an aged grandmother or uncle.

This is an age-long complaint of Head Masters of this College, but in these so-called enlightened days, and certainly days of more strenuous endeavour than at generation ago, I think it is about time that parents realised that regular irregularity is fatal to their sons' chances of promotion. I see no reason why the average attendance should not be in the region of 96%: so far this year there are signs of an improvement and I hope it will continue.

Basement Cleaned Up.

After referring to the age of the building and the almost constant necessity for repairs of a major nature making it increasingly difficult to do good work, the Headmaster said:—About half of our classes have to work with artificial light the whole day; the lighting of these rooms is still far from satisfactory. A new common room for Anglo-Chinese masters has been fashioned out a verandah.

The spacious basement under this hall, for almost half a century the repository of broken furniture, etc. in a filthy condition, and the delight of all the cats and other vermin in the neighbourhood, has been cleared out and cleaned up, resurfaced, and lighted by the Public Works Department. It now serves as an indoor recreation room, managed by the Queen's College branch of the Y.M.C.A.

Forcing the Pace.

Dealing with the examination results, the Headmaster said it was not surprising that only a small percentage of boys manage to pass Junior Local and Matriculation. The syllabus in the various subjects for Matriculation is even wider than for the London Matriculation; here, we have to cover the course in three years, whereas at home the average boy takes at least five years to cover the same work; and all the work here is done in a language foreign to the boys.—Reuter's American Service.

THE SZE YAP CO.
DISPUTE.

SOLICITOR CROSS-EXAMINED IN COURT.

Mr. Leo D'Almada, sen., witness for the defence in the Supreme Court action between the Sze Yap Steamship Company and certain people, in which the former is seeking an injunction to restrain the latter from acting as Directors, which was continued before Mr. Justice Wood yesterday, was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., counsel for plaintiffs.

In the course of cross-examination, Mr. Potter asked:

Did you not know there was dissatisfaction amongst certain of the shareholders regarding the Directors?—Not until I saw the requisition.

You know, for either good or bad reason, that the Directors themselves did not convene the meeting they were asked to convene?—I was so instructed.

You know that as a result, the requisitionists convened the meeting?—Quite.

You had a copy of the requisition before the meeting?—I did. You knew that in the requisition appeared the eight points?—That is right.

Will you agree with me that they were points of utmost importance?—Clearly.

That they involved a censure and the removal of the Directors?—Quite.

And that you might well expect that there would be a very severe contest on the points?—Yes, I knew there would be some sort of a "scrap," as there had been "scraps" before.

You went to the meeting fully expecting a serious "scrap"?—Oh! Yes certainly. So did Mr. F. X. D'Almada, because we had talked about it beforehand.

And you knew that our party took the precaution to have police present?—I did not know it before the meeting, but I do now.

Did you go to the meeting with the intention of addressing it on behalf of your clients?—I was asked to attend the meeting and if possible to pacify the meeting if there was trouble and to explain any legal points.

Attempted to Pacify.

His Lordship:—Did you go with the intention of addressing the meeting?—No I did not.

Mr. Potter:—What induced you to try and address the meeting?—Because it was so stormy.

His Lordship:—Were you speaking in Cantonese?—No, I spoke in English and it was interpreted.

Mr. Potter:—Your object was to try and bring the meeting to a more pacific frame of mind?—As soon as I started to speak, and my words were interpreted I was howled down.

His Lordship:—Did you intend to pacify the meeting?—Yes, but I was howled down.

Mr. Potter:—And I suppose it is fair to assume that you were howled down by my party?—Yes, no doubt.

Really what happened was, the requisitionists said it was not necessary for you to address them because the directors were well able to speak for themselves?—No, they said that I could not speak because I was not a shareholder, and I should only be allowed to speak if the meeting called upon me to do so.

The Directors knew you were going to be there?—They had not asked me to speak.

So if what you say is right, the requisitionists took rather a strong line at this meeting?—It was because they howled me down.

This was a very strong meeting?—Yes, I am ashamed to say that rather foul language was exchanged, and a bitter feeling was displayed on both sides.

It was not the class of meeting one could easily pacify?—I agree.

Not to Tell Lies.

In the ordinary way you would expect the resolutions to be put to the meeting one by one and discussed?—Yes.

I put it to you as a lawyer, and one who is accustomed to attending Company meetings, that nothing except the very strongest reason should dissuade a Chairman from putting resolutions to the meeting?—Yes.

May I take it that none of these resolutions were put to the meeting?—Not that I am aware of.

Did not the shareholders voice any desire that the eight resolutions should be put to the meeting?—There were a few shareholders who wanted the eight resolutions put to the meeting.

You really mean, only a few?—Yes, of the 200 present, only about 18 to 20 quarrelled amongst themselves, the remainder were silent.

Why cannot you say how many were in favour and how many against?—How could I? I did not know them.

I put it to you that if the resolutions were put properly, you could have given a fair estimate.

Mr. D'Almada later said that the Chairman did eventually put a resolution proposed by one member and seconded by another, that only two of the resolutions in the requisition were passed, and that the meeting should not pass the other six. The three points were contained in the one resolution.

Mr. Potter:—Did you really hear all this?—I did, I have not come here to tell a single lie.

You are still certain that the resolution was put in that form?—I am as certain as the fact that I am standing in this box.

That concluded the business of the meeting?—Yes, after it had been carried.

A Striking Change.

Was there any opposition offered by the requisitionists to these three resolutions being passed?—Not so far as I could see.

Isn't that rather a striking change of attitude on the part of the requisitionists? Remember their frame of mind up to a certain point of the meeting, when it was at its stormiest. Can you give any explanation as to the change in the attitude of the requisitionists?—I can't say. Ask the requisitionists; not me.

How did Mr. Li Yu-tung put the resolution to the meeting?—You are placing a tall order on me. He asked those to show their hands who were in favour of the chartering of the ships and the paying of dividend if assets allowed, and that the other six resolutions be not dealt with. The meeting showed hands and the resolutions were declared as passed.

I put it to you that is hopelessly and wholly wrong?—That is your opinion, not mine.

I put it to you that the meeting was in favour of the eight resolutions being put to the meeting?—I can't tell you.

His Lordship:—You have already told me that when the Chairman asked the meeting if it wanted the eight resolutions considered, the meeting said no, and that the majority was against the eight resolutions being considered?—Yes, I say the majority raised their hands approving of the three resolutions. The Chairman said "Those in favour?" and a good many put up their hands.

Mr. Potter:—Did he say "Those against put up their hands?"—I don't think he did.

How many people put up their hands?—More than half on both sides of the house.

Mr. Potter:—This has never been put to any of our witnesses.

I put it to you that your recollection is hopelessly at fault because the majority of the meeting opposed the suppression of the eight resolutions?—That is not so.

Can you give me any reason for the change of opinion?—I can't say at all.

Can you give me any idea what the eloquent gentleman who awayed the meeting said?—I can't.

After Mr. Li Yu-tung had begun his evidence, the proceedings were adjourned.

The first reading of the new Estate Duty Bill was agreed to at the meeting of the Legislative Council held yesterday afternoon. His Excellency the Governor (Sir William Peel, K.B.E., C.M.G.) presided, and there were also present:

Hon. N. L. Smith (Deputy Clerk of Council).

New Member.

The Oath of Allegiance was taken by Mr. R. A. C. North on assuming his seat as the Secretary for Chinese Affairs.

A Difficult Bill.

The Attorney General moved the first reading of a Bill intituled "An Ordinance to amend the law relating to Estate Duty."

He said:—Sir, I rise to move the first reading of a Bill to amend the law relating to Estate Duty. The schedule to the Bill gives the new rates per cent. at which Estate Duty is to be payable.

In the case of estates between £1,000 and £5,000 in value, the new duty is to be half of the old, one per cent. instead of two per cent. Up to £10,000 it is to remain at two per cent., and up to £25,000 it is to remain at three per cent., these being the present rates on such estates. After £25,000 it is to rise to four per cent.; after £50,000 to five per cent., and thence, by stages of one per cent. at a time, until a maximum of 12 per cent. is to be paid in respect of estates exceeding £2,000,000.

The present maximum, which has been in force since 1916, is eight per cent., for estates exceeding £2,000,000. But therein the Colony has been exceptionally fortunate compared with other places. In the Straits Settlements, for many years, it has been 12 per cent. for estates exceeding £1,500,000. In some Colonies and in the United Kingdom, the maximum reaches 40 per cent. At the same time the Bill makes many amendments in the Ordinance of 1916, generally bringing it into closer agreement with the legislation of the United Kingdom.

not so much, however, with that object in view as with the objects of improving the machinery for collection and of closing the avenues of evasion. It results from the suggestions of many experts, extending over several years, law officers, estate duty commissioners, and their assistants, and last, but by no means least, practising solicitors representing the Incorporated Law Society of Hongkong. It has not been an easy Bill to draft. Local conditions are not the same as those at home, and there may be two opinions as to some of the clauses of the Bill. If these are pointed out either at or before the debate on the second reading at the next meeting, I, for one, will welcome the reference of such clauses to the Standing Law Committee under Order 27 of the Standing Orders of this Council.

I now move the first reading of the Bill.

The Colonial Treasurer seconded and the Bill was read a first time.

Registration of Nurses.

The Attorney General moved the second reading of a Bill intituled

"An Ordinance to provide for the Registration of Nurses for the Sick." He said:—This Bill is based on the English Act of 1919, and will establish a Nursing Board and a Register of Nurses, which will improve the status of our nurses and, at the same time, protect the public by the assurance that registered nurses have received a recognised training for their important duties.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

Widows and Orphans.

The Attorney General moved the second reading of a Bill intituled "An Ordinance to amend further the Widows and Orphans' Pension Amendment Ordinance, 1908." He said:—The revision of salaries has made it desirable to increase the minimum which renders an officer liable for contribution. The Bill also exempts certain other persons as stated in the memorandum at its foot.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

Public Health.

The Attorney General moved the second reading of a Bill intituled "An Ordinance to amend further the Public Health and Buildings Ordinance, 1908 and an Enactment referring thereto." He said:—This Bill repeals two sections of the principal Ordinance and gives us two new sections improving the machinery for the seizure and destruction of tainted, diseased or unwholesome food.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

Census.

The Attorney General moved the second reading of a Bill intituled "An Ordinance to make provision for taking, from time to time, the Census of the Colony." He said:—The object of this Bill is to improve machinery for taking decennial census in which it is hoped everyone will do their best to co-operate with the Superintendent of Census and the enumerators.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

Merchant Shipping.

The Attorney General moved the first reading of a Bill intituled "An Ordinance to amend the Merchant Shipping Ordinance, 1899." He said:—A very full statement of the object and effect of this Bill is contained in the memorandum attached to it which is in the hands of members. It will not be brought into force in the Colony until after it has received the assent of His Majesty the King.

The Colonial Secretary seconded and the Bill was read a second and third time and passed.

Adjournment.

H.E. the Governor:—The Council stands adjourned until this day week, February 12th.

Finance Committee.

A meeting of the Finance Committee followed, at which the Colonial Secretary presided. Two votes, amounting to $3,300, were approved without discussion.

Skin Beauty.

A smooth, clear complexion, with cheeks rosy-tinted by nature, adds more to a woman's charm than mere regularity of feature. And all the paraphernalia of the beauty parlour, the expensive cosmetics, the lauded beauty soaps, cannot bring you skin-beauty unless your internal organs are functioning healthily, regularly eliminating impurities from your system.

The greatest enemy to beauty is constipation, for when the food tract is clogged with waste matter the blood is constantly re-absorbing impurities which break out into pimples and skin blemishes; the skin is ill-nourished, becomes coarse and sallow.

Start achieving health and beauty from within by the occasional use of Over 100 members and guests of the Oak Leaf Lodge, R.A.O.B. (G.L.E.) attended the first annual dinner in Shanghai, held at the Strand Hotel. Bro. A. Mainwaring, Provincial Grand Secretary for China, was present. The hostess, Mrs. D. Cholmis was presented with a lovely silver flower vase.

Vogue in

Summit

Dress
Collars

To wear a Summit Dress Collar is to appreciate to the fullest extent what a difference the Summit system of quarter sizes—four sizes to every inch—really does make in the comfort and appearance of one's collar. By wearing a Summit Dress Collar that is a quarter size smaller than the collar worn by day a fit is ensured that is exactly comfortable and comfortably exact. There is no gulf between the collar and neckband of the shirt.

To-day's vogue is for a dress collar with wide opening and fairly long square-cut points, as expressed in Summit Shapes 21, 23, 26, 27 and 28. Each is a correct shape for dress wear, and each shows a certain individuality which adds to your pleasure in choosing.

SHAREHOLDERS IN ARGUMENTS.THE "CHAIRMAN" GIVES EVIDENCE.

COMPANY QUARREL.

Evidence that at the extraordinary meeting, a proposal to abandon the eight resolutions of the requisition, with the exception of one relating to chartering ships, was carried by a majority of about 80 per cent., was given in the case concerning the dispute between certain shareholders and the directors of the Sze Yap Steamship Company, in the Supreme Court this morning, before Mr. Justice Wogd.

Cross-examined by Mr. Potter, Li Yu-tung, the first chairman at the extraordinary meeting, said he would agree that as a reasonable man, the requisitionists apparently believed that they were doing right, both legally and morally. He would also agree that when the notice of the meeting was published by shareholders in the Chinese papers, a counter-blast from the directors was also published alongside it, and that in their article they attacked the validity of the whole proceedings.

Arising out of a question by Mr.
Potter, Mr. Jenkin said that the directors abstained from attending the confirmatory meeting on legal advice.

Dealing with the extraordinary meeting, Mr. Potter recalled the evidence was that Ma Yu-lau sat on one side of the chairman and a Mr. Kan on the other, and the latter had said that he took notes of the meeting. Witness said it was so long ago that he could not remember whether that was so or not.

Mr. Potter:—Did you see anyone next but one to you taking notes of the proceedings?—I remember that, next to Ma Yu-lau, there was a man writing something, but I do not remember who it was.

Idle Talks.

Did you know that, for some time, some shareholders had disapproved of the conduct of the directors of the company?—I did not know if there was a body of dissatisfied shareholders.
When pressed on this point, witness said he had heard that there were two parties, and that there had been talks between them, but they were idle talks.
He continued that when the meeting commenced he caused the resolutions to be read out because he believed that to be the business of the meeting. They were resolutions of very great importance to the company and one dealt with the question of chartering.

Am I right in saying that this meeting was extremely stormy?
—At the beginning of the meeting, yes, but not so much afterwards.

Tell me what the storm was about?—I did not know what they were quarrelling about.

Talking in Batches.

Do you really mean you cannot tell us what the trouble was about?—Yes, they were talking among themselves in batches.

Witness continued that when those present had quietened down, Wong Chuen-lau proposed that the resolutions regarding chartering and a dividend should be discussed, and that the rest of the eight resolutions should not be dealt with at all. Mr. Tam Yutung seconded that resolution and he (witness) put it to the meeting.
The majority of those present agreed to the resolution by a show of hands.

Was there any dissent?—I cannot say if anybody dissented because I did not ask if anybody objected as 80 per cent. of those present voted for it. I saw several tens of men who did not vote and remained silent but they did not show any dissatisfaction at all.

So, on your evidence, it comes to this. That the body of shareholders who had made the requisition specially for the purpose of getting new directors appointed, abandoned all these resolutions with the exception of the one relating to chartering?—Perhaps those people who intended to go to the meeting for that purpose were only a small number, and when they found such a large crowd approving of the resolution proposed, they would not oppose it.
The case is proceeding.

FRIDAY, FEB. 6, 1931.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN AMERICA.

News reaching this part of the world by mail from the United States shows that the unemployment problem in America continues to be of the utmost gravity. It is doubtful, indeed, whether anything like the full facts are disclosed even in the newspapers, for whilst estimates of the number idled are given from time to time, it is practically impossible to discover figures which set out the situation in all its nakedness. It was recently stated by the President of the Federation of Labour that there were no fewer than 5,700,000 unemployed wage-earners in the country early in January, this figure, however, taking no account of farm hands or office workers. If these were added, there would be a huge addition to the figure. It is not easy to compare the situation in the States with that in Britain, for the reason that the calculations are not made on the same basis. There are, for example, thousands of partly-employed men in America of whom no account is taken in the statistics so far issued. Indeed, according to private advices received, the employees in numerous industries have at the moment to be content with part-time duty, with a consequent shrinkage in their pay-roll.

When we come to look at conditions in America now and compare them with those prevailing before the situation first showed signs of depression towards the end of 1929, we realise how tremendous the change is. At the first sign of a reflex action from the prevailing prosperity, it was common to hear talk of "technological unemployment," which was a nice way of saying that more and more were being thrown out of work each year by the invention of more efficient machinery. Just now, however, the country is experiencing much unemployment of the other variety. Some interesting light on the situation has just been given by a leading American economist who points out that during the past ten years agriculture has released no fewer than 400,000 workers annually, with the result that between three and four million fewer persons live to-day on farms than was the case a decade ago. Industry, trade and transportation have been forced to find jobs for all these people, in spite of the alarm raised over technological unemployment in industry. It has been too readily assumed that new inventions are responsible for the bulk of the idleness now being experienced. Some of it is due to this cause, admittedly, as it is in most countries, but the general trade depression is a far bigger factor. Equally, if agriculture in the States were caring for the three or four million people that it has turned into the cities, the problem would not be so acute as it now is.

It will thus be seen that part of the problem in the United States is an agricultural one, and if agriculture could be restored to its old-time health, the cities would feel the beneficial effects as well. Work would be easier to find, and there would be less competition for jobs. Wages, too, would most likely be higher. The trouble is, however, to set agriculture on its feet, especially in such a way as not to send up the cost of living to the people generally. "Back to the land" movements, however desirable they may be, meet with small response these days in most countries. The trend is towards the city. We may regret this development, but it persists none the less.

Angora and Islam.

The recent religious uprising in Turkey, partly instigated by an old enemy of Mustapha Kemal and partly arising from genuine religious feeling, has drawn attention to the political situation in a country which for some considerable time past has figured but little in world news. The introduction of a Latin alphabet and her part in the illicit drug traffic have embraced Turkey's sole claims to notice. Moreover, it is now evidence that the attempt to restore the Caliphate is not to be taken too seriously. However great the dimensions of the movement, and there can be little doubt that the fragmentary reports slipping through the censorship gave little idea of its magnitude. Beyond the activities of the dervishes in the Province of Smyrna and the serious clash at Menemen between the military and villagers, the revolt gained no headway. The stern measures taken by the Government, culminating in the past two or three years with the execution of many of the principals, checked the outbreak at its inception. Nevertheless, the mere fact that it occurred at all would suggest that the religious question may still prove a very unsettling factor in the Republic of which Kemal Pasha is the virtual dictator. Ever since the abolition of the Caliphate there has been misgiving among the Moslems that the disintegration of Islam has begun and that some steps would have to be taken to prevent its disappearance as a moral force in the world. With the gulf between the church and the state ever widening, the feeling has grown, but apart from the vigorous protest of the Aga Khan some years ago, nothing has been done. And the new in Turkey is not to be finally settled by the hanging of a few sheikhs and dervishes.

ARMED PIRACY GUARDS.

FOR CHINA MERCHANT
CO. VESSELS.

Armed guards will be placed on board all China Merchants' coasting steamers, according to news issued in Shanghai. A rigid search of all passengers, crews and ships will be made before steamers leave port.

Extra precautions will be taken to guard the wireless room, while a heavy steel and wire gate will be placed at the head of each stairway leading to the bridge deck of every C. M. coastal steamer.

The above, in the main, are the measures agreed upon by officials of the China Merchants' S. N. Company, at a meeting held as precautionary steps against piracy. The meeting was the result of the uncovering of a plot engineered, it is believed, again to pirate the a.s. Hsin Min.

THE COLONEL'S RING.

A TALE OF HORROR.

By ALGERNON BLACKWOOD.

AMONG the rare experiences that include real horror the episode of Hendrik and the Colonel's ring deserves a place. Real horror, fortunately, is extremely rare. Emotions to-day are so vulgarised that an insipid person is called a horror, and a mere pudding awe-ful. Hendrik, whose ten years in America had provided dreadful things enough, met his only "real horror," his nightmare, in a London service flat. His half-uncle, Colonel Seitz, was host. There were no trappings. Horror slipped in quietly, almost slyly.

Hendrik had just arrived after ten disastrous years in America, time and money wasted, longing only to hide himself from friends and relations, when he found at his cheap hotel near Victoria Station a note from his uncle: "Welcome back from your Wanderjahre! I've not forgotten your headstrong boyhood. I'm alone in town. Do come and dine to-morrow—New Year's Eve—just you and me. The ship's Purser, an old acquaintance, told me where you had put up." A tactful P.S. added: "Of course, don't dress. And I have much to ask you."

Hendrik, after hesitation, went. Dinner was what he had called in Wisconsin a "major meal," and he had known years in which one good meal a day kept the devil away, the devil of hunger, cold, misery. He remembered little of Colonel Seitz, beyond that he was a Sapper, his father's half-brother, and had sown remarkably riotous wild oats. On sailing as a boy for Canada, the Colonel had shaken his hand, mumbled something about "a chip of the old block making good," and had given him ten shillings. Much as he wanted to avoid his relations just now, and wondering if the Purser had mentioned that he had been a steerage passenger, he brushed his only coat, and walked to Half Moon-street.

A genial, rather collapsed old gentleman, far from soldierly, and with a thick neck, Hendrik found him, as they shook hands this second time, though, alas, with no ten shilling tip, and after a sherry and bitters they sat down to what the half-starved youth considered a gorgeous dinner. He felt more than shy, he felt ashamed, coming home with empty pockets and still emptier history. But his uncle, rather peep-pocking the ups and downs of life, soon made him feel at home.

"There are several things I want to hear from you, boy," he remarked easily over the Burgundy, as he played with his eye-glasses cord, making a ring of it, "about life, I mean, not about yourself. One thing," he added warmly, "is that you never wrote home and squealed." He created a kindly, comfortable atmosphere in this way. Only Hendrik wished he would leave his eye-glasses cord alone, for the way he kept on making loops and nooses with it, got on his nerves a bit. His eyes, too, were continually drawn to the thick neck. High living, he reflected, probably!

Since they had shaken hands ten years before, Hendrik, though acquiring no money, had acquired values of a sort. As a newspaper-reporter in New York, a certain knowledge of men in the raw had come to him. Before the soup was over, he had decided that his uncle was badly worried, and "on his uppers," as his Yankee lingo put it. A dozen signs betrayed him. He watched his nervous fingers eternally playing with that cord, then with the napkin ring, then with the napkin itself, making it into a noose, a slip knot.

"The old boy's up against it somewhere," ran through his observant, watchful mind, as he enjoyed the food, thinking of its cost, and listening to his host's rather incoherent talk about "these awful modern times" and the "good old days when I saw you off to Canada." Still, life was a "great game, you know," and he had "been through hell myself," though he had always "so far found a way out, you know, in the end." This, with occasional references to the family, rambled on. And then, quite suddenly: "You've seen lots of fellows go out, I'm sure—shoot—hang—hang—the electric chair, and the rest. Now, what about it? Tell me—do they mind much? Beforehand, I mean?" His fingers toyed with a metal ring round a faded button-hole, pulling the wire about somewhat feverishly.

Hendrik, having witnessed such things personally, told what he could, but with reluctance. He did not like this turn in the conversation. His uncle, listening with avidity, he noticed, was now playing with his handkerchief, fastening it tightly round his wrist, then loosening it again. "Lynching, too, I daresay?" came after emptying his glass. But Hendrik shook his head. He lied—that he had never seen a lynching. He disliked the talk still more; he felt a little funny.

"I don't think they feel much," he answered at length the insistently repeated question. "In my experience, there's just a natural mental funk, you know, beforehand. Death itself seems painless." "Ah!" exclaimed his host with a sort of excited guffaw. "That's what I thought, yes—painless. It amounts to very little really. I wanted to ask you," he added, "because I felt you would be just the chap to know." He laughed, if a trifle boisterously, at the same time more genially. Hendrik shrugged his shoulders, taking a sip of wine. He felt uncomfortable.

"You" the other went on, the face grave again, "you have been hard up. You're been up against it, I take it. I needn't ask, poor boy. Your face shows it," and he handed a prime cigar to his young guest. "A Corona," he mentioned, "and I know you'll appreciate a good 'un," as he held out a lighted match. "I haven't much left in life," he added, "but I've managed to keep a few of these, and some marvellous kummers. I'll get it in a minute. Keep it in my bed-room, you know, locked up."

He began trying to fit the cigar band on to a thick finger which refused to take it, and Hendrik noticed a ring he wore, with a white diamond. "Ah, you spot the ring, I see," came the remark. "It was your grandfather's. I thought of leaving it to you some day. Proud to, you know. I think it's wonderful the way you pulled through, my boy. I respect you for it."

Hendrik grinned sheepishly, feeling rather foolish, but he felt something else as well, something unpleasant, bitter, puzzling. This ceaseless preoccupation with a ring disturbed him. Was it telepathy, of a sort perhaps? Was his uncle queer in his mind somewhere? An abrupt impulse came to him that he shrank from, and yet obeyed—the newspaper reporter's instinct, probably—to speak of the very thing he wished to avoid. He yielded anyhow.

"Rings interest you, sir?" he asked casually, and saw an extraordinary expression flash across the other's face, and die away as quickly as it came. "Oh!—for the moment, possibly, yes—for the moment," Colonel Seitz said lightly. He pulled out his keys at the end of a silver chain. "Now, that's not a bad one," he remarked, examining the key-ring; "only it doesn't give enough." "Give?" repeated the other, puzzled. "Don't tighten, when it ought to," was the reply, with a (Continued on Page 7.)

In saying that in putting boys in for Matriculation after three years in the Senior School we are unduly forcing the pace. After two years they take the Junior Local Examination: most of these boys are ill-prepared, they rarely cover more than a half to three quarters of the syllabus, no time for discussion or revision or general reading, but one hard grind at examination subjects from 9-4. Very few survive even the Junior Local Examination, and, with about seven months actual work we have to put them in for Matriculation.

The Matriculation and Junior Local Examinations begin about the middle of November and it is towards the middle of January when we get the results of the latter examination. We cannot form our new Matriculation classes until the results are out—boys of course, will not buy their books; hence, deducting holidays, there remain only about seven months work in school. There is much to be said for the point of view recently raised by a correspondent in the newspapers that these examinations take place in July. I am not simply repeating what Mr. Crook urged at many previous Prize Distributions. Eight or nine years ago I had charge of these classes myself at Queen's College and I know from experience that most of our pupils are not ready to be presented and I am supported in this statement by all my masters.

Half-Baked Students.

No wonder the complaint is about half-baked students, no wonder the University complains about the quality of its first year undergraduates. Foundations are badly laid, the boys are hurried on too quickly and the result is a mental muddle. "The flowering stage has been achieved before the roots and leaves have developed sufficiently to bear the fruit and our young plants, raised from seed which has fallen on stony ground, prematurely wither away."

For this reason I welcome the suggestion that the Matriculation Examination be replaced by a School Leaving Certificate Examination (S.L.C.), but the change should not be a mere change in name only; the whole character of the examination should be changed. It should be entirely divorced from the Matriculation Examination, it should be based on the work we actually do in school and should be a record of a good general education, a standard of all-round general efficiency as would cause it to be regarded of the highest value by Government and employers.

The Matriculation examination is unsuitable as a School Leaving Examination: it specialises in five subjects only, whereas the School Leaving Certificate should be compulsory in what I regard as the seven basic subjects of a good general education, viz. English, Chinese, Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, History and Geography, and a pass mark should be required in each of these. Breadth of knowledge in school boys should not be sacrificed to the mastery of a few subjects. Certain subjects should not be left out so that others may be gone into more deeply; that is the function of a University not a school. All the subjects I have mentioned are essential constituents of a sound education and the School Leaving Certificate should not be able to be gained unless the candidate reaches a certain standard in all these subjects.

Must be Pruned.

Hence the present Matriculation syllabus must be ruthlessly pruned to serve as a School Leaving Certificate syllabus: the standard of attainment expected may be put intermediate between the present Junior Local Examination and Matriculation. The School Leaving Certificate should reflect the work we do in school and should be such that the boy of average intelligence, after three years in the Upper School, has a good chance of passing. The brighter boys would pass with Honours, Distinctions or Credits and those who wished to enter the University could proceed to Matriculation in the five special subjects a few months later. But this of course, is a matter entirely for the University authorities.

Admission Examinations.

Class 4 is the top class in our Lower School and in Government District Schools. The annual examination of this class for admittance to Class 3 is controlled by the Education Office. There is tremendous competition for the few remaining vacancies after boys from the Government District Schools have been admitted. I am glad to say that it is proposed to throw this examination open to the whole Colony and not confine it to boys of Government Schools. Too many boys now manage to get through this examination: at this stage there should be a careful weeding out and only those boys allowed to pass who are likely to benefit by a higher education. Many of the boys who now enter Class 3 make very little progress: there seems to be a definite limit to their further educability. For many years there has been great wastage in Class 3: last year e.g. there were 198 on the Roll divided into seven sections; 69 left during the year and of the remainder only 84 passed into Class 2 i.e. 42%, and of these the presumption is from past years that at least 60% will fail in the Junior Local Examination at the end of this year. Only about 20% of those therefore who enter the Upper School proceed to Matriculation. The rest have either left or failed.

The boys who are admitted to the Upper School should be so selected that there is a strong probability of their passing the School Leaving Certificate three years later.

Fetish for Numbers.

It is worse than useless for boys who are fitted for advanced work, or for boys who are not going to pursue them for a considerable time, to begin these secondary subjects: once admitted there should be some guarantee that they will stay the full course. I do not wish to deprive any boy of the benefits of a good education, but by the time Class 4 is reached we have a shrewd idea of those who will profit and of those who will not profit by advanced instruction: to go on with the latter I venture to say educationally unsound. I think the fetish of numbers is at the bottom of the trouble and we were warned against this in this hall by Lord Lugard in 1911. Those boys who do not respond to an English education beyond a certain point would probably find their level in a different type of school, probably vocational. These boys of course are not entirely wasting their time or Government money. We do them a vast amount of good through association with British teachers, good discipline, games, and other influences on character. It is not within my province however to discuss such an interesting theme and whether it is worth the cost; I can only point out the educational drawbacks.

Best Brains Needed.

In conclusion, the Headmaster said:—I should like to stress the importance of education as far as this Colony is concerned, and as that that it will be possible to maintain the present facilities and standards. We need the best brains for the future welfare of this Colony and this depends on the education given in the schools. If we do not keep up the standards of our educational institutions and equipment or the standards of the entrants into the teaching profession, then the efficiency of the rising generation is reduced, and that is what this Colony can afford least of all. Economic distress is acute in England and yet there is tremendous educational development going on. Given a wise selection of pupils who will go right through our 8-year course in the schools, with the possibility of the University afterwards, we would so stamp and mould boys as to leave permanent marks, and this would redound to the credit and advantage of both Hongkong and China—boys with discipline, ideals, and a desire to serve their colony, their country and their fellow-men. If we cast our bread upon the waters, we shall find it after many days.

Governor's Speech.

His Excellency, addressing the school said, in part:—I think it is a most difficult thing to make a satisfactory speech at a prize-giving. It is almost impossible to find anything to say that has not been said often before, and almost impossible to avoid well-worn clichés. Moreover, one's remarks should mainly be addressed to the boys, who are only anxious for one to "cut the cackle," as they say, and let them get away.

In the first place, I thank the staff and the boys for their congratulations on the honour graciously conferred on me by His Majesty the King. I congratulate the College on Mr. de Rome's report in general. This success is the more admirable in view of the somewhat melancholy accommodation conditions to which he referred. I have listened with interest to his remarks in regard to certain points in the educational system. I agree with him that the results of the Junior Local Examinations have been very disappointing generally, and I feel convinced that there is something wrong in the system. I am having investigations made, and it is more than probable that some changes in the system will have to take place. Though greatly interested in the question, frankly I cannot claim to be an educationalist, but I am hopeful that with the advice and co-operation of the Vice-Chancellor (Sir William Hornell) and the Director of Education (Mr. G. P. de Martin), an improvement will be effected.

I congratulate those who have won prizes to-day, and also those who, though they have not actually won prizes, have made a laudable effort to do so. Prizes and examinations are not everything, but they serve as an incentive to effort.

I suppose most of you boys come to school with the idea that the main object is an academic education. While this is of considerable importance, it is not the only thing that you acquire at school, or even possibly the most important thing.

Discipline Necessary.

There is for instance the question of discipline. I suppose it sounds a horrid word to boys, and that you think when you leave school you will have finished with it. If you think so, you are making a great mistake. Discipline never ends until you shuffle off this mortal coil, and no matter how old you are, you always find that you have to be constantly disciplining yourself. It is essential, therefore, that you should get the right idea of it when you are young. Discipline, rules and regulations always seem rather onerous, but they are absolutely necessary. A man cannot rule well unless he has learnt in his time to obey. You cannot be a successful captain of a ship, colonel of a regiment, head of a bank or commercial undertaking, captain of a football or a cricket team, unless you have been trained thoroughly in observing discipline and rules.

Nor is discipline confined to the class-room. It looms very large in the playing fields. Rules often seem very irksome, and it may be sometimes difficult to see the reason for them; but you must remember that they have been made.

THE "TELEGRAPH" ART SUPPLEMENT.

To-Morrow's Selection of Pictures.

There will be a variety of topical pictures in to-morrow's issue of the Telegraph Art Supplement.

Several pictures of the Lai Wah Cup final football match will be given, as well as others of the annual inspection of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

The inauguration of the Canton-Vuehow air mail service will be illustrated, and two interesting snapshots will be given of the S.S. Charles Hardouin ashore.

Pretty scenes from concert items at the prize-giving of the Italian Convent School will appear, together with groups of the Chinese Y.M.C. A. rally and the staff and students of the Hwa Nan College.

Amongst other pictures will be one showing the transhipment of the remains of Capt. Schoep, U.S. Navy, to America for interment.

by people of long experience, and just as rules are necessary in playing games, so are they in the administration of school, and indeed of any undertaking.

Tradition Important.

Another thing that you come to learn at school is the meaning of tradition. I do not mean merely the tradition of the college itself. That is very important, of course. Queen's College has its own traditions, and it is for you boys to see that you help to maintain them; but there are other traditions—traditions of playing the game and dealing honourably with your fellows.

These can probably be learnt better at school than anywhere else. Here at school a boy is judged largely by his fellows, who constitute a very strict, but on the whole, an impartial, tribunal.

Photograph Unveiled.

Subsequently, Mr. de Rome called upon His Excellency to unveil a photograph of Mr. A.H. Crook, the late Headmaster. He reminded the gathering of Mr. Crook's long association with Queen's College, and said that the photograph had been handed to the school by an old scholar.

His Excellency, in complying with the request, said he had not the privilege of personally knowing Mr. Crook, but he had quickly learned of the splendid reputation he had made for himself during his many years in Hongkong.

Cheers for His Excellency, the visitors, the Headmaster and the school terminated the proceedings.

Amongst those present on the platform, were Lady Peel (accompanied by Mr. G.W.A. Tuffon), Sir William Hornell (Vice-Chancellor of the University), Mr. G.P. de Martin (Director of Education), and the Hon. J.P. Braga.

LADIES' NIGHT AT Y.M.C.A.

AMATEUR DRAMATICS BIG SUCCESS.

Introducing a new note, the Ladies' Night at the European Y.M.C.A., yesterday was a complete success, both for the entertainers and the entertained.

The programme was arranged by the newly-inaugurated Y.M.C.A. Amateur Dramatic Players, and their contribution to the evening's enjoyment took the form of three one-act plays, including a comedy by A. A. Milne, "The Camberley Triangle", Arnold Bennett's farce "The Stepmother" and a bed-time style of drama "In Port".

All three were well received by the exceptionally large audience, and the players demonstrated excellent stage abilities.

In addition, Mrs. Rendall, Mr. G. W. McLeod and Mrs. McLeod gave enjoyable songs, the evening being voted as one of the best ever held.

Miss Nancy A. McNeillie was a sympathetic accompanist, staging and effects were in the hands of Mr. J. C. Grenham, whilst Mr. W. Robertson was responsible for the excellent production of the plays.

THEFT OF LADIES' HANDBAG.

SNATCHER GETS STIFF SENTENCE.

At the Central Magistracy this morning a Chinese was sentenced to ten months' hard labour and 18 strokes of the birch for the theft of a handbag, containing $120, the property of Miss Ada Lo, of 69, Pokfulam Road.

Detective Sergeant Clarke, prosecuting, said the theft occurred at about 6 o'clock on Wednesday evening, when Miss Lo was returning to Pokfulam. Walking in Bonham Road, she met the defendant, who snatched her handbag and ran up a flight of steps into the grounds of the University. Here he was overtaken and stopped by two boys who had come out from St. John's Hall upon hearing Miss Lo's cries.

In sentencing the defendant, Mr. Williams ordered him to undergo an additional two months' imprisonment if, on medical examination, it were found he was unfit to receive the whipping.

CHINESE RAILWAY QUESTION.

RUSSIA SAID TO WANT BIG SUM.

Nanking, Feb. 5.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. C. T. Wang, returned here last evening and conferred with General Moh Teh-hui, Chinese delegate to the Moscow Conference. Copies of General Moh's full report on his work at Moscow work at Moscow have been submitted to Marshal Chiang Kai-shek and the Ministry for Foreign Affairs.

The Central Political Council will hold a conference with General Moh on Tuesday, when the Nationalist policy towards Russia will be discussed.

It is hinted in official circles that the Russian Government is demanding $1,600,000,000 whereas the Nanking Government is willing to pay $400,000,000 to purchase the Russian interests of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

GROWING HOARDS OF GOLD.

AMERICAN AND FRENCH 1930 ACQUISITIONS.

London, Feb. 5.

In the House of Commons to-day replying to Sir Arthur Steel Maitland, Mr. Philip Snowden, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that the gold added to the stocks available for monetary purposes in the United States in 1930 was $309,000,000, and in France, 11,303,000,000 francs.—Reuter.

BRITAIN'S VOTERS.

AN INCREASE OF MORE THAN 600,000 SHOWN.

London, Feb. 5.

The new Register of Electors for Great Britain and Northern Ireland shows an increase of 664,719, compared with the register on which the General Election of 1929 was fought.

The total exceeds 29,500,000 Parliamentary electors, and there are 1,700,000 more women than men entitled to vote.—British Wireless.

JOCK CRICHTON ARRIVES.

GREAT FIGHT FOR TITLE EXPECTED TO-MORROW.

Jock Crichton, the middleweight and welterweight champion of the Colony, arrived in the Colony from Shanghai yesterday, to defend his middleweight title against A. B. Ewin, from whom he captured it about a year ago.

Both men are fresh from splendid victories over opponents of good standing, and to-morrow's bout should prove entertaining in the extreme.

There is an excellent programme of supporting contests. That popular youngster, A. B. Kelley will be out again, facing Stoker Harley, while two old hands in L. S. Hall and L. S. Davies, will cross gloves at 147 pounds in a ten rounder.

U.S. AMBASSADOR.

ON WAY SOUTHWARD TO VISIT MANILA.

Shanghai, Feb. 5.

Mr. S. Cameron Forbes, the U. S. Ambassador to Japan, is leaving for Hongkong to-morrow on the Empress of Canada, en route to Manila to visit the Governor General Mr. Davis.

It is worthy of note that Mr. Forbes' grandfather was Mr. John Forbes, who went to Canton in 1834 and founded Russell and Company, out of which came the China Merchants S.N. Company.—Reuter.

THE COLONEL'S RING.

touch of impatience. "The keys slip out, you see."

Hendrik, unable to think of anything intelligent, mumbled something about rubber being more practical. "This," commented his uncle in a curiously lowered tone, "is far, far better," and he pulled his napkin into a taut elastic circle round his wrist so that the flesh changed colour. The young man felt a sudden shiver as he watched, a cold air passed near him; he wished he had never come. His flesh began to tingle. While his mind searched for a means of changing the talk, the mood, the atmosphere, his host suddenly pushed back his chair. "By Jove, I mustn't forget that," he exclaimed, and got up, touching the bell. "Tell the waiter to leave the coffee. I'll be back in a moment," he said, crossing to the bedroom door. "You'll find it great stuff, my boy!" He smacked his lips as he passed through, closing the door with a little bang behind him.

The bang, though so slight, made Hendrik jump as if he had been shot. His every instinct told him to follow—and at once. His skin was moist; he was aware that he was trembling. One shiver followed another down his spine. He hesitated, however, arguing rapidly with himself, and while he argued, listened. He listened intently. Nothing stirred. He told himself his plain duty was to enter the inner room, while yet there was time; he also told himself he had no right to do any such thing, and that he was merely an over-imaginative fool.

Several minutes passed thus, but at last he got up with a jerk. There was perspiration on his forehead. He took a couple of quick steps forwards, and at that moment the waiter entered with the coffee. He came in quietly, without knocking, and at the first sound of his rubber boots, Hendrik shot round with a violent start towards the bedroom—and saw his uncle moving across the floor in the direction of the table.

He was coming back to his chair, and behind him the bedroom door was still closed. But he had no bottle of Kummel in his hand. Both hands were empty. They waved oddly in the air, as though seeking for support. He swayed a little, and the face, badly congested, with protruding eyes, sent the instant thought into Hendrik's terrified mind: "He's taken poison." For a moment he could do nothing but stare, fascinated, into those two eyes that met his own. The body then, he saw incredibly, seemed to lengthen, and, while it lengthened, swayed, but swayed above the ground, as though the feet had no support. It swayed slowly, swinging through the air for several feet. The next instant, the head wrenched itself backwards with a sudden jerk, showing the deep red line about the neck, and Hendrik caught the whisper of a single word: "Painless."

"Will the Colonel be back for coffee at once, sir, or shall I keep it hot?"

It was the waiter speaking, the waiter who saw only one person in the room, the guest, Hendrik, for his part, now saw only the black-crowned figure with the coffee-tray. When, a few minutes later, they had burst open the door—it had been locked on the inside—the ring of thickish cord had done its work.

TO-MORROW'S LEAGUE PROGRAMME.

CLUB'S NEW PLAYER.

[By "Wanderer."]

It is gratifying to see Mr. J. Ormiston, the chairman of the Hongkong Football Association out and about again, and resuming the reins. Mr. Ormiston was in a bad motor smash some little time ago and suffered fractured ribs.

It appears after all that the Interport Team has not been finally selected. Another trial is to be played on Wednesday next against the Royal Navy. For the first time, the Selected Side is referred to as a Probable team. It is as follows: Clark (Police); Li Tin-sang (South China); Henderson (Argylls); Hedley (Kowloon); Eynon (Borderers); Lam Yuk-ying (Chinese Ath.); B. Gosano (Recreio); Segalen (Club); A. Gosano (Recreio); Fung King-cheung (South China) and Ip Pak-wa (South China). Changes in the team may be made at half-time, which is a matter of interest for the following reserves: Bishop, Strange (Club); Phipps (Kowloon); Yeoman, Hay (Argylls) and Suen Kam-shun.

The draw for the Second Round of the Shield Competitions is to be made at the meeting on Tuesday next of the Council of the H.K.F.A. Confirmation of the reinstatement of Tso Kwai-sing and Chan Kwong-ul will also be sought.

The league fixtures for to-morrow follow:

Senior Division.
Chinese Athletic v. Royal Navy.—Stadium, 4.15.
Argylls v. H.K. Club.—Sookunpoo, 4.15.
Kowloon v. Club de Recreio.—Kowloon, 4.15.
Second Division.
University v. Navy.—Chinese, 4.15.
South China v. Athletic.—Caroline Hill, 2.45.
Borderers v. Recreio.—Sookunpoo, 2.45.

St. Joseph's v. Argylls.—St. Joseph's, 2.45.
R.A. v. Eastern.—Chatham Road, 4.15.
Club v. Kowloon.—Club, 2.45.
Third Division.
Chinese v. South China.—Chinese, 2.45.
Ewo v. Fulkens.—Navy, 2.45.
R.A.S.C. v. R.A.F.—Chatham Road, 2.45.

The Navy are at top strength just now, but more forward efficiency than was disclosed in mid-week will be necessary if they hope to defeat the Athletic at the Stadium. On form generally, they should certainly be capable of annexing both points.

The Club meet the Argylls at Sookunpoo and the Highlanders will be out to avenge themselves for their defeat in October last, their first of the season. The Club are making several changes in their team, Jimmy Stewart coming back into the side while a newcomer, Johnson, fills the centre-forward berth. The Argylls should win.

The meeting of Kowloon and the Recreio should provide a lively duel. Kowloon drew 1-1 on the Recreio ground and on current form should manage to capture both points before their own supporters.

Probable teams include:
Kowloon:—Angus, Martin, Bliss, Hedley, McKelvie, Dowman, Moss, Simpson, Gillett, Grimwood, Janson.
Club:—Rodger, Strange, Bishop, Watson, Stewart, Duncan, G. Duncan, Segalen, Johnson, McBride and Wallington.
Kowloon 2nd:—Angus, Everest, Guest, Brown, Gilchrist, Smith, Eastman, Whiting, Spary, Cotton, Bickford.
Club 2nd:—Fogwell, Stoker, Paton, Ioff, Sloan, Panchoon, Hynes, Smith, Alexander, Strange, Jackson, and Tavin.

Murder At Bridge

by ANNE AUSTIN, author of "THE BLACK EAGLE" and "MURDER BACKSTAGE"

BRUIN HERE TODAY.

Special Investigator Dundee, investigating the murder at bridge of Junilia Selim, tells District Attorney Sanderson his findings. Possible suspects include Lydia Carr, the maid; Dexter Sprague, John C. Drake, Judge Marshall, Nita's landlord, to whom she paid no rent, and owner of the gun and silencer with which she was shot; Polly Beale and Clive Hammond, who were in the salaried together; Flora Miles, Janet Raymond and Ralph Hammond.

Sprague came early to the party, went upstairs to the room he used, and shaved. Lydia followed him, told him he would have to clear out, and stayed behind to clean up after him. Sprague went down, out the back, and around the house.

Flora Miles admits she was in Nita's room reading a note which she thinks is from her husband, Tracy, but which is really from Sprague. Dundee and the district attorney decide to withhold this evidence at the instant, preferring to accept the theory that a New York gunner did the job. Dundee hopes to find out who paid Nita $10,000 since her arrival in Hamilton.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Bonnie Dundee's whole soul revolted at the very thought of the barbaric farce of an inquest—the small morgue chapel crowded to the doors with goggle-eyed, blood-lusting humanity; the stretcher with its sheeted corpse; reporters, avid for sensation and primed with questions which, if answered by indiscreet witnesses, would defeat the efforts of police and district attorney; news photographers with their insatiable cameras aimed at every arriving person connected with the case in any way.

Mercifully, this particular inquest upon the body of Junilia Leigh Selim promised to be quickly over. For Coroner Price, in conference with District Attorney Sanderson, Special Investigator Dundee and Captain Strawn of the homicide squad had gladly agreed to call only those witnesses and extract from them only such information as the authorities deemed advisable.

Lydia Carr, whose black veil had defaced the news camera levelled at her poor, scarred face, was the first witness called by Coroner Price, and she was required for the single purpose of identifying the body as that of her mistress. To two perfunctory questions, "Have you any information to give to this jury regarding the cause and manner of the deceased's death?" and "Have you any personal knowledge of the identity of any person, man or woman, of whom the deceased stood in fear of her life?"—Lydia answered a flat "No," and was then dismissed.

Karen Marshall, looking far too young to be the wife of the elderly ex-judge, Hugo Marshall, was the second witness called. Dr. Price guided her gently to a brief recital of her discovery of the dead body of her hostess, emphasizing only the fact that, so far as she could see, the bedroom was unoccupied except by the corpse at the time of the discovery.

He then handed her the photographic copy of a blueprint of the ground floor of the Selim house, with a pencilled ring drawn around the bedroom. Karen falteringly identified it, as well as the pencilled furniture, and was immediately dismissed to the disappointment of the packed rows of spectators and reporters.

Dr. Price himself took the stand next and described, in technical terms, the wound which had caused death and the calliper of the bullet he had extracted from the dead woman's heart.

"I find, also, from the autopsy," he concluded, "that the bullet travelled a downward, slanting path. I should add, moreover, that I have made exact mathematical calculations, using the position of the body and of the wound as a basis, and found that a line drawn from the wound, and extended, at the correct slant, ends at a point 51.8 inches high, upon the right-hand side of the frame of the window nearest the porch door. And he obligingly passed the marked blueprint among the jury. When it was in his own hands again, he added: "It is impossible to state the exact distance the bullet travelled, more nearly than to say the shot was fired along the line I have indicated, at a distance of not more than 15 feet and not less than 10."

Captain Strawn rose and was permitted to question the witness:

"Dr. Price, that blueprint shows that the bedroom is 15 feet in width, don't it?"

"That is correct."

"Have you also measured the height of that window sill from the floor?"

"I have," the Coroner answered. "The height from floor to sill is 26 inches."

"Now, doctor, from your calculations, would it be possible for a man crouching in the open window to fire a shot along the path you have calculated?"

"It would," Dr. Price answered. "But as I have pointed out it is impossible for me to say at exactly what distance from the body the shot was fired."

But Strawn, of course, was amply satisfied. And so were Dundee and the district attorney, for it suited their purposes admirably for the public to be convinced at this time that an intruding gunman had murdered Nita Selim.

Captain Strawn, sworn in, told briefly of his being called to the scene of the crime, of the activities of Carraway, the fingerprint expert, and of the exhaustive search of his squad of detectives.

"Did you find any person concealed upon the premises, that is, within the house itself, or in the garage or on the grounds?" Dr. Price asked.

"No, sir."

"Did you or your men discover the weapon with which the deceased was killed?"

"No, sir."

"Did you question all persons in the house at the time of the crime, as to whether or not a shot had been heard?"

"I did. The answer in every case was that they heard no shot."

"And you also questioned every person present in an effort to place responsibility for the death of Mrs. Selim?"

"I did. I couldn't find that anyone present had anything to do with it."

"Who were these persons?" Dr. Price then asked.

"Judge and Mrs. Hugo Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy A. Miles, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Drake, Mrs. Peter Dunlap, Miss Janet Raymond, Miss Polly Beale, Miss Penelope Crain, Mr. Clive Hammond, Mr. Dexter Sprague—of New York—and Mrs. Selim's maid, Lydia Carr," Captain Strawn answered promptly.

"Did you find on the premises any clue which you consider of importance to this jury?"

"I did! A bunch of footprints under the window you've been talking about. Here are life-size photographs of 'em, doctor. . . . And the rumble rose vines that climb up the outside of the window had been torn."

After the photographs had been duly inspected by the jury of six, Dr. Price said: "That is all, and thank you, Captain Strawn. . . . Mr. Dundee!"

As had been agreed between the coroner and the district attorney, Dundee's testimony, after the preliminary questions, was confined to the offering of Nita Selim's "last will and testament" and the note to Lydia.

The reporters, who had obviously feared that nothing new would eventuate, sat up with startled interest, then their pencils flew, as Dundee read the two documents, after he had told when and where he had discovered them. As District Attorney Sanderson had said: "Better give the press something new to chew on, but for God's sake don't mention the chequebook of Nita's. It's dynamite, boy—dynamite!"

While the morgue chapel was still in a buzz of excitement, Dundee was dismissed, and District Attorney Sanderson requested an adjournment of the inquest for one week.

The police were urging the crowd upon its way before it became fully aware that it had been cheated of the pleasure of hearing, at first hand, the stories of that fatal bridge and cocktail party, from the guests themselves.

"Tell the Carr woman I want to speak to her," Sanderson directed Dundee. "She'll thank you for rescuing her from the reporters."

As Dundee pushed his way through the jam he heard a reporter earnestly pleading with Lois Dunlap: "But I'm sure you can remember the cards each player held in that 'death hand,' Mrs. Dunlap."

Cheerfully sure that he could trust Lois Dunlap's discretion and distaste for publicity, Dundee went on, grinning at the reporter's use of his own old phrase.

Two minutes later Sanderson, Strawn and Dundee were closed in Dr. Price's own office with Lydia Carr.

"First, Lydia," began Sanderson. "I want to warn you to give the reporters no information at all regarding the nature or extent of your mistress' bequest."

"It was little enough she had, poor girl, beyond her clothes and a few pieces of jewellery," Lydia answered stubbornly. "Are you going to let me do what she told me to, in that note? . . . Not that I hold with burning."

"I see no reason why you should not take charge of the body, Lydia, and arrange it immediately for cremation. . . . Do you, Captain Strawn?" Sanderson answered.

"No, sir. The quicker the better." "Then, Lydia, if Captain Strawn will send you out to the Selim house with one of his boys, you may get the dress described in Mrs. Selim's note."

"And the curls she cut off and had made into switches," Lydia interrupted. "I can't dress my poor girl's hair in a French roll without them!"

"The curls, too," Sanderson agreed, with a slight smile. "Now as to this cremation—"

PREMIER'S HOLIDAY.

MR. MacDONALD REQUIRES A SHORT REST.

London, Feb. 5.

The Premier, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, is to take few days' complete rest, from his duties. His health is excellent, but pressure of work in connection with the Indian Conference and Parliament, coupled with inability to take a holiday at Christmas, has made a few days' relaxation desirable.

He intended to fly to Lonsdalemouth, his Scottish home, but the cold weather in that area has caused an abandonment of that plan, and he will probably stay at Chequers for a long week-end.

SMALL-POX QUESTION.

PUBLIC MEETING OF CHINESE BEING CALLED.

Regarding the decision of the Sanitary Board for rescission of the resolution permitting the treatment of small-pox cases in the patient's home, a request has been made to the Chairman of the Tung Wah Hospital to convene a public meeting with a view to making a protest to the Government.

"Mrs. Miles let me come in early to see about that," Lydia interrupted again. "They can do it this afternoon, and you don't need to worry about the expense. I've got money enough of my own to pay my girl's funeral expenses."

"Good!" Sanderson applauded. "The will will be probated as soon as possible, of course, but it makes it simpler if you will pay the necessary expenses now."

"Just a minute, chief," Dundee halted the district attorney as he was about to leave. "Under the circumstances, I think it highly advisable that we get pictures of the burial dress. I suggest you have Lydia bring the things to your office before she lays out the body, and that Carraway photograph the dress there, from all angles. I should also like to have a picture of the body after Lydia has finished her services."

The maid's scarred face flushed a deep, angry red, but she offered no protest when the district attorney accepted both of Dundee's suggestions.

"Then you'll have Carraway with his camera at my office in about an hour?" Sanderson turned to Captain Strawn. "Let's say 12 o'clock. By the way, Lydia, you may bring in with you the few pieces of jewellery you mentioned. I'll keep them safely in my office until the will is probated and they are turned over to you."

"I don't know where she kept them," Lydia answered.

"What!" exclaimed Bonnie Dundee.

CORRESPONDENCE.

More Questions.

[To The Editor of Hongkong
Telegraph.]

Sir,—No answer to my question!
The Colony has been declared insolvent and presumably the Legislative Council faced the consequences of that declaration.

May I enquire further?
Have the members of the Legislative Council placed their resignation in the hands of the Governor?

Is the Secretary of State appointing the equivalent of a Trustee in Bankruptcy?

Will there be a Public examination?

My suggestions are based on analogy, not precedent, as I cannot find in the British Empire any precedent for the Government arranging a composition with its creditors, though I believe Charles I got into difficulties and Stephen and John are strongly suspect.

CALL A SPADE AND INSOLVENCY BANKRUPTCY.

The Incompleat Higbrow.

My dear,—I think Syncope perfectly horrid when I'm trying to be helpful and I'm always ready to admit when I'm wrong. F'rinstance, Tubby says that I was too absolutely erroneous about the currants.
He says it isn't that sort of thing at all and its no good trying to explain to a girl because its all mixed up with Buy-Medallism—but I say why not, my dear, if anyone wants to buy them now's the time while silver's cheap and poor Sir William might make pots of money out of them.

Tubby says the trouble is that everyone is trying to turn silver into gold, but that's what the old Anarchists tried to do and couldn't.
He says that when I send to London for a frock the banker gives him a draft on sterling but that's too silly because there are lots of places nearer London and anyhow if the banker gives him the draft why does he swear when I want a new frock.

Last night Maud and Angus dined with us—quite a gathering of the indigenzla, as Angus said.
Tubby said that what we want is vigorous outrenchment and Angus says he knows where just the sort of trenches for the civil servants are and that's Happy Valley and he says poor Sir William ought to have them all to dinner and poison them like the Borzois used to do when people turned nasty.

And, my dear, they think that's a lovely idea about making the civil servants work at night on the census. Angus says the whole trend of modern philanthropy is to make people work for longer hours and less pay, but that nothing will come of it because there'll be such a rush of Volunteers from the General Public now no one has any business to do. Tubby says it wouldn't be a bad idea always to make them work at nights and then they could sleep in their offices all day just like they do now and the Government could make ever so much money by letting their houses, Angus suggested that half the trouble is the P.W.D. Recurring, but when Bonzo had the mange and the Vet. said that that might recur I gave him a powder and he broke his chain and we've never seen him since. Couldn't they give the D.P.W. one? You can get them at Watsons.—Yours helpfully, POPSY.

S.R. CONTRACT FOR SWEDEN.

BRITISH ELECTRICAL FIRMS' HIGH PRICES.

The Southern Railway have decided to place a £65,000 switch-gear equipment contract in connexion with the London-Brighton electrification scheme with a Swedish company.

The whole scheme will cost approximately £3,000,000 and British manufacturers fear that further contracts may go out of the country, as the prices quoted by the Swedish firm are stated to be 50 per cent. lower than the nearest British tender and are alleged by home manufacturers to be below production costs.

SNATCHER CAUGHT RED-HANDED.

STOLE GOLD PENCIL FROM EUROPEAN.

Mr. George Conwell prosecuted a Chinese before Mr. Williams, at the Central Police Court this morning, on a charge of stealing a gold-mounted pencil, valued $12, in Des Voeux Road, Central yesterday evening.

The defendant denied the charge.

In evidence, Mr. Conwell said he was walking along Des Voeux Road at 8.45 p.m. yesterday, in company with a friend, when the defendant, with one arm raised, jostled witness as he passed. Witness heard the click of the clip on the pencil and immediately looked at his pocket. He saw that his pencil had gone and on turning round saw the defendant running away. Witness gave chase and caught the accused after about fifty yards. He still had the pencil in his hand when caught.

The defendant remarked that both the complainant and his friend were drunk and had assaulted him (defendant).

Witness replied that he was a total abstainer.

His Worship registered a conviction and, on the defendant's record showing a previous conviction of two months just recently imposed a sentence of six months' hard labour.

JAPANESE CINEMA PICTURES.

DISPLAY GIVEN AT SHAMEN.

Shamen, Feb. 5. An interesting series of Japanese cinematograph pictures was shown at the Canton Club Theatre last night, by kind invitation of Mr. Y. Suma, Japanese Consul-General. The first film was of a trip from Nagasaki to Unzen, the second film depicted typical Japanese scenes of the four seasons, and then followed pre-arranged views of Tokyo and Yokohama, terrible scenes of fire and destruction during the awful experience of 1923, devastated Tokyo and Yokohama, the arrival of the relief ships bringing food and clothing, and the distribution of same to thousands of homeless and starving people. Then the rebuilt Tokyo and Yokohama of to-day, showing the wide thoroughfares, beautiful open spaces and imposing buildings, a wonderful transformation effected in seven years.—Our Own Correspondent.

THE DRUG TRAFFIC IN CHINA.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR LEAGUE ENQUIRY.

Geneva, Feb. 5. The Opium Committee to-day discussed the traffic in opium and other drugs in the Far East and the Chinese representative, Mr. Woo Kai-sen, stressed the strenuous efforts that were being made by China to suppress the traffic.

He asked for the cooperation of the governments having concessions in China.

The Commission decided to await the result of the negotiations for enquiring into the situation in China recommended by the Opium Commission of 1929.—Reuter.

TAX COLLECTION REFORM.

PROVINCIAL OFFICIALS DISMISSED.

Nanking, Feb. 5. The Nanking Government has ordered the dismissal of the Finance Commissioners for Jiangsu, Chekiang, Kiangsi and Honan. It is stated that with the exception of Kwangtung and Chihli, all Provincial Finance Commissioners are to be dismissed or assigned to new posts when the abolition of likin becomes effective.

The Nanking Government holds that henceforth all the principal taxes in the Provinces should be collected directly by representatives of the Finance Ministry.

PLEA FOR CHINESE CULTURE.

TOO MUCH WESTERN STUDY IN HONGKONG.

PRIZE-DAY SPEECH.

"Chinese students in Hongkong are over-emphasising their western studies," declared Mr. Fung Ping-shan, speaking this morning at the annual prize day of the Government Vernacular Middle School at Sai-yingpun, when he made an eloquent appeal to the scholars to pay more attention to the study of their own language.

"A general survey of the schools in the Colony reveals at once that too much stress has been laid upon the study of English, while that of Chinese is lamentably ignored," he declared. "From among the hundreds of students who sat for the Matriculation and Junior Local Examinations of 1930, only one gained distinction in Chinese, while those gaining distinction in other subjects were numerous."

"This is a sufficient proof that Chinese students in Hongkong are over-emphasising Western studies. They are unfortunately blind to the truth that Chinese studies are the source of our civilization as well as our culture. And, in fact, in all the civilized countries of the world, all the people will count their own culture as the very foundation."

Link Both Together.

"Moreover, where culture exists, morality or formation of character exists as well. If, therefore, we can chain up Eastern and Western culture, we shall be good elements not only in the local community but also in the world at large."

"In referring to the value of Chinese literature, Father Macdonnell, speaking before the Hongkong Branch of the English Association, well said, 'The more we strengthen the bond that really binds us the better for the world. The more the literatures of East and West are made accessible to the whole world, the more strong shall we find to be our mutual sympathies.'"

"This school has been opened for five years, and the results of each year have proved highly gratifying. Of the eight successful candidates of the Entrance Examination of the University School of Chinese Studies this year, seven are students of this school. This splendid result is undoubtedly due to the effort of Mr. Li King-hong, the headmaster, and his staff."

"I do sincerely hope that those of you who receive prizes this morning will not content themselves with just so much, but that they will go a step further, aiming always at preserving Chinese culture in order to preserve the moral standard of our fellow countrymen."

Headmaster's Report. In his annual report Mr. Li King-hong said:—It is a fact worthy of record that since the establishment of this school in 1925 we have had to refuse admission to no fewer than 1022 candidates chiefly on account of lack of accommodation.

Applicants who sought for admission here after summer vacations are not yet included in this figure. In order to meet this pressing demand the Government found it necessary to put up additional classrooms on the playground. These two new classes were started in last April when our staff was strengthened by the addition of Mr. Li Nai-wai and Mr. Lau Chui. But we missed a great deal by the retirement of Mr. Lo Hui-tung at the end of December. The highest enrolment of the year was 253 the average attendance 222.82 as against 191 and 176.45 respectively in 1929.

Generous Gift.

We are indebted to Mr. Fung Ping-shan for the donation of $3,000 for the purpose of establishing four scholarships of $30 each, which we are going to award to our students the first time this morning, and to the Bank of East Asia for being so generous as to give six per cent. interest for this particular donation in spite of the low rate prevailing in the Colony. We are also grateful to the Pan Huk Tun, at present represented by Mr. Li Hui-tung and Mr. Li Kwoon-chun, for the continuation of their scholarships. When the Government has found itself obliged to raise school fees, these generous gifts are most essential to those students who are particularly in need of their help.

After Mr. Fung Ping-shan gave away the prizes the Hon. Dr. Tso made a short speech in Chinese emphasising the importance of Chinese culture, which to the Chinese student must be an essential combination to his Western learning.

Those present included Mr. Y. P. Law, Mr. Liang Sai-wah (Inspectors of Vernacular Schools), Mr. Li Yau-chuen, O.B.E., Mr. Hung Kam-woo, Mr. Chau Tung-shan, and Mr. Lam Tung.

KINZAN MARU.

NO NEWS REGARDING HER FATE.

No further news has been received by the local offices of the N.Y.K. with regard to the s.s. Kinzan Maru, which grounded last Monday on some rocks near Ockee Island, close to Amoy. The vessel is not equipped with wireless, it is understood, and whatever news there may be will come through Shanghai.

CAPTAIN CAMPBELL TRIUMPHS.

hind, it occupies the entire space between the axles.

The power unit is the famous type "D" supercharged Napier Lion aviation motor, and has 12 cylinders arranged in three banks of four. The centre block is vertical, the other two being inclined at an angle on each side. The bore and stroke of this engine are respectively 139.7 mm. and 130.17 mm. and the capacity is 24,000 cc. At 3,600 r.p.m. an output of 1,450 b.h.p. is obtained. It is one of the lightest engines ever built, with a power-weight ratio of 3/4 lb. per h.p. developed.

Wind-tunnel Experiments.

The bodywork, which incorporates more than 600 square feet of sheet aluminium, was designed after extensive wind-tunnel tests had been made with a scale model of Plastiline. During these tests it was found necessary to raise the sides of the driver's cockpit considerably, as the draught of air at over 200 m.p.h. would have been sufficient to blow the driver out of the car!

An interesting announcement in this connexion is made in a British Wireless message this morning stating that the National Physical Laboratory at Teddington have had erected a new variable density tunnel for the purpose of research.

The construction of the tunnel by Messrs. John Brown of Sheffield marks a distinct advance in the technique of hollow forging to withstand high pressures. The tunnel is composed of the largest hollow rolled steel drums in the world and it has withstood a test pressure of 550 tons per square inch.

Campbell's Debit. High speed aeronautics and land racing already owe many successes to the results of research in the wind tunnels of the National Physical Laboratory. The chassis and body of the Blue Bird car in which Captain Campbell has successfully attacked land speed record were subjected to exhaustive tests of this kind. It is anticipated that research in the tunnel will yield data of great value.

The tail of Captain Campbell's car is built up on a substantial frame of steel tubing, the top of the tail fin, which is used to ensure directional stability, being some 6 ft. from the ground. A tiny ventilator in front of the pyramid-section glass windscreen allows a draught of air to pass on the inside of the screen, sufficient to counteract any suction which the screen might set up. Such a suction might cause dust to be blown into Capt. Campbell's face, or blow off his goggles.

A small revolution counter, the dial coloured so as to make the 3,500 r.p.m. and 4,000 r.p.m. marks easily readable, is in a faired-off boss at the forward end of the bonnet, directly in the driver's line of vision, and can be used as a "sight" on the distant objective.

Twenty-two Paint Coats. The body received no less than 22 coats of paint in order to ensure an absolutely smooth, polished cellulose finish. This tends to reduce skin friction and helps towards more speed.

The wheels are of the steel disc type, about 3/4-in. thick, and are fitted with aluminium discs. Large diameter, smooth-threaded tyres are used, their radius at rest being 17 1/2 ins. At speeds of over 150 m.p.h. however, the contour of the tyre changes, due to centrifugal force acting on the tread, and their diameter increases to 19 ins., thus giving the car an added 1 1/2 ins. ground clearance.

A very interesting point is that the car is jacked up by inserting long screws in special threaded sleeves integral with, and at each corner of, the chassis frame. The screws are turned by tommy-bars and the jacks are capable of lifting the car 6 ft. off the ground!

The wheelbase is 12 ft. 2 3/4 ins. and the track 6 ft. 4 ins. in front and 6 ft. 2 ins. at the rear. The overall length is 25 ft. and the width 6 ft., while the top of the driver's head is only 39 1/2 ins. from the ground.

QUAKE DISASTER AFTERMATH.

Occasionally rescuers are rewarded by the release of some unfortunate victim imprisoned since the first dread shock. For instance, late in the afternoon two women were rescued alive, and two others have been located alive but still trapped in the debris.

The relief workers have appealed to the railway authorities to provide extra rolling stock so as to accelerate the evacuation of the city.
